Five Four Questions

Objective: I look forward to reading these, first of all, to get to know a little bit more about you. I also read these to see how well you can already write. It's important to me that you do your best with both of those goals in mind:

- Direct your writing toward me as your audience, letting me know whatever it is about you that you want me to know.
- Write your very best (including spelling, spelling, handwriting, style, etc.) full paragraphs. Points will be deducted for significant mechanical errors.

Directions: Write at least four complete sentences in response to each prompt. If any of your responses has less than that, you'll receive no points for that paragraph. Don't rush through this. You may use the back of the pages or staple on additional sheets of paper if you need more room.

One More Thing: Choose only 4 of the following 5 questions to respond to; skip one.

1. So you've finally made it to high school! How do you feel about being here?

2. When you get a chance to listen to music, what do you listen to and why?

3. Who are the most important people in your life? Why?

4. What are your plans after graduating from high school?
What are you doing now to make those plans a reality?

5. Describe an event in your life that has caused a significant change in you.
