

LITERARY ANALYSIS BODY PARAGRAPH

- → a topic sentence that includes the AUTHOR, a clear AUTHORIAL CHOICE (i.e., both a literary device AND some indication of HOW the author made use of it)
- } → two smoothly woven, parenthetically cited quotations
- } from your outline which provide evidence of this paragraph's authorial choice
- } → for each piece of evidence (see above), your own COMMENTARY about the significance, effect, or impact of those specific choices — woven into your evidence if you can
- } → a meaningfully restated version of your thesis's theme claim (does NOT have to be complex but MUST be at least simple)

LITERARY ANALYSIS BODY PARAGRAPH

- → a topic sentence that includes the AUTHOR, a clear AUTHORIAL CHOICE (i.e., both a literary device AND some indication of HOW the author made use of it)
- } → two smoothly woven, parenthetically cited quotations
- } from your outline which provide evidence of this paragraph's authorial choice
- } → for each piece of evidence (see above), your own COMMENTARY about the significance, effect, or impact of those specific choices — woven into your evidence if you can
- } → a meaningfully restated version of your thesis's theme claim (does NOT have to be complex but MUST be at least simple)

LITERARY ANALYSIS BODY PARAGRAPH

- → a topic sentence that includes the AUTHOR, a clear AUTHORIAL CHOICE (i.e., both a literary device AND some indication of HOW the author made use of it)
- } → two smoothly woven, parenthetically cited quotations
- } from your outline which provide evidence of this paragraph's authorial choice
- } → for each piece of evidence (see above), your own COMMENTARY about the significance, effect, or impact of those specific choices — woven into your evidence if you can
- } → a meaningfully restated version of your thesis's theme claim (does NOT have to be complex but MUST be at least simple)